

Global Human Rights Defence

International Financial and Operational Transparency Report 2025

Foreword

Global Human Rights Defence (GHRD) is an international human rights organization committed to defending vulnerable communities, protecting minorities, and promoting fundamental human rights and freedoms across the world. Through advocacy, documentation, international engagement, awareness campaigns, and direct cooperation with global partners, GHRD continues to strengthen international attention towards human rights violations impacting marginalized communities.

The organization actively engages with international institutions, including the United Nations, European institutions, policymakers, civil society organizations, media platforms, and grassroots networks to create visibility, accountability, and support for victims of discrimination, violence, forced conversions, abductions, religious persecution, and other forms of systemic human rights violations.

GHRD's activities include international conferences, side events at the United Nations Human Rights Council, human rights documentation, policy advocacy, media outreach through GHRTV, awareness campaigns, educational initiatives, and the strengthening of international human rights networks. This report has been prepared to ensure transparency and accountability regarding the financial resources used to support operational activities and the implementation of human rights programs.
